Keynote Speakers

W. A. Drew Edmondson, Attorney General: Drew Edmondson was elected Attorney General in 1994, and in 1998 became only the second Attorney General in Oklahoma history to win re-election without opposition. He was re-elected in 2002 to a third term. Edmondson served as the 2002 - 2003 President of the National Association of Attorneys General after a two year stint as the Chair of the Consumer Protection Committee and Chair of the Southern Region of Attorneys General. In 1996, Edmondson filed suit against the tobacco industry to recover tax dollars Oklahoma lost treating smoking related illnesses and to stop the industry from targeting children in its marketing. The lawsuit resulted in a $2 billion settlement between the industry and Oklahoma, part of the largest settlement in the history of the world. Edmondson was one of eight attorneys general asked to serve on the negotiating team for the states. Early in his first term as Attorney General, Edmondson successfully advocated reform of the death penalty appeals process at the state and federal levels, cutting lengthy appeal times in half. He also created a victim assistance unit in the Attorney General's Office.

Susan Savage, Secretary of State: Oklahoma Secretary of State Susan Savage has dedicated most of her life to public service, having headed the Metropolitan Tulsa Citizens Crime Commission before eventually becoming the longest-serving mayor in Tulsa history. Her impressive litany of accomplishments and experience prompted Governor Brad Henry to name her as Secretary of State in February of 2003.

Denise Brown: Born in Germany and raised in Southern California, Denise Brown led a life remarkable only in its normalcy until June 12, 1994 when her sister, Nicole Brown Simpson, was murdered. If you were to ask Denise to describe herself prior to this tragic event, you would have heard, "I'm just a mom from Laguna Beach." Brown's life path dramatically altered, she would now tell you that along with her devotion to her son, Sean, she is also committed to raising awareness against domestic violence - a crime that kills three women every day in the United States. Since early 1995 Denise Brown has traveled to various states speaking on the epidemic of domestic violence. She has addressed university student bodies, men in prison and in batterers' treatment programs, women at risk, church groups and various educational and legislative forums. Ms. Brown has helped raise funds for local shelters all across the country with her appearances, and has assisted in the success of a major project called the Vine System. This Program is an automated victim notification service of the release of batterers from jail or prison.
