This workshop is being offered FREE to support health care professionals and direct service providers who respond to domestic violence. The training will be useful to medical providers, social workers, counselors, law enforcement officers, domestic violence service providers and others to assist in the recognition and documentation of domestic violence, identify appropriate interventions and services, and conduct lethality (danger) assessments.

Day one (August 10, 2004):
The training will focus on medical assessment and intervention to improve the medical response to victims of domestic violence including issues of screening, identification, referral, and medical documentation.

Day two (August 11, 2004):
The training will focus on factors associated with intimate partner homicides and the appropriate use of lethality assessments.

Participants may attend one or both days of the training depending on their training needs.
SPEAKER:
Jacquelyn C. Campbell, Ph.D., R.N. is the Anna D. Wolf Chair and Associate Dean for Faculty Affairs in the Johns Hopkins University School of Nursing with a joint appointment in the Bloomberg School of Public Health. Her B.S.N., M.S.N. and Ph.D. are from Duke University, Wright State University and the University of Rochester Schools of Nursing. She has been conducting advocacy policy work and research in the area of domestic violence since 1980. Dr. Campbell has been the Principal Investigator of 9 major National Institutes of Health, National Institute of Justice, and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention research grants and has published more than 120 articles and seven books on this subject. She has an extensive number of publications in peer-reviewed journals on family violence and domestic violence homicides. She is an elected member of the Institute of Medicine and the American Academy of Nursing, has served as a member of the congressionally appointed US Department of Defense Task Force on Domestic Violence, and is currently on the Boards of Directors of the Family Violence Prevention Fund in San Francisco and the House of Ruth Battered Women’s Shelter in Baltimore.

AUDIENCE:
The training is designed for emergency room physicians and nurses, ob/gyn specialists, physicians’ assistants, public health nurses, admission clerks, records clerks, social workers, chaplains, emergency medical technicians, domestic violence service providers, counselors, law enforcement, and prosecutors.
